

ELSEVIER LTD
TRANSFER OF COPYRIGHT AGREEMENT

Journal publishers and authors share a common interest in the protection of copyright: authors principally because they want their creative works to be protected from plagiarism and other unlawful uses, publishers because they need to protect their work and investment in the production, marketing and distribution of the published version of the article. In order to do so effectively, publishers request a formal written transfer of copyright from the author(s) for each article published. Publishers and authors are also concerned that the integrity of the official record of publication of an article (once refereed and published) be maintained, and in order to protect that reference value and validation process, we ask that authors recognize that distribution (including through the Internet/WWW or other on-line means) of the authoritative version of the article as published is best administered by the Publisher.

To avoid any delay in the publication of your article, please read the terms of this agreement, sign in the space provided and return the complete form to us at the address below as quickly as possible.

Article entitled: A set of amino acids found to occur more frequently in human and fly than in plant and yeast proteomes consists of non-essential amino acids

Corresponding author: Dr. J.M. Ortega

To be published in the journal: Computers in Biology and Medicine

I hereby assign to Elsevier Ltd

the copyright in the manuscript identified above and any supplemental tables, illustrations or other information submitted therewith (the "article") in all forms and media (whether now known or hereafter developed), throughout the world, in all languages, for the full term of copyright and all extensions and renewals thereof, effective when and if the article is accepted for publication. This transfer includes the right to adapt the presentation of the article for use in conjunction with computer systems and programs, including reproduction or publication in machine-readable form and incorporation in electronic retrieval systems.

Authors retain or are hereby granted (without the need to obtain further permission) rights to use the article for traditional scholarship communications, for teaching, and for distribution within their institution, as set out in the General Terms of Publication (see note 1), and also agree to the other terms.

- I am the sole author of the manuscript
- I am one author signing on behalf of all co-authors of the manuscript
- The article is a 'work made for hire' and I am signing as an authorized representative of the employing company
- I am a US Government employee and there is no copyright to transfer, but I affirm the author warranties (see notes 3 and 4)
- I am a co-author who is not a US Government employee but whose co-authors are government employees (see note 4)
- I am an employee of the UK, Canadian or Australian Government claiming Crown Copyright, but I affirm the author warranties (see note 5)
- I am a co-author who is not claiming Crown Copyright but whose co-authors are employees of the UK, Canadian or Australian Government (see note 5)

General Terms of Publication

1. As an author you (or your employer or institution) may do the following:

- make copies (print or electronic) of the article for your own personal use, including for your own classroom teaching use;
- make copies and distribute such copies (including through e-mail) of the article to research colleagues, for the personal use by such colleagues (but not commercially or systematically, e.g. via an e-mail list or list server);
- post a pre-print version of the article on Internet websites including electronic pre-print servers, and to retain indefinitely such version on such servers or sites;
- post a revised personal version of the final text of the article (to reflect changes made in the peer review and editing process) on your personal or institutional website or server, with a link to the journal homepage (on elsevier.com);
- present the article at a meeting or conference and to distribute copies of the article to the delegates attending such meeting;
- for your employer, if the article is a 'work for hire', made within the scope of your employment, your employer may use all or part of the information in the article for other intra-company use (e.g. training);
- retain patent and trademark rights and rights to any process or procedure described in the article;
- include the article in full or in part in a thesis or dissertation (provided that this is not to be published commercially);
- use the article or any part thereof in a printed compilation of your works, such as collected writings or lecture notes (subsequent to publication of the article in the journal); and
- prepare other derivative works, to extend the article into book-length form, or to otherwise re-use portions or excerpts in other works, with full acknowledgement of its original publication in the journal.

All copies, print or electronic, or other use of the paper or article must include the appropriate bibliographic citation for the article's publication in the journal. See note 7 concerning posting related to the National Institutes of Health ("NIH") voluntary posting request policy (referred to as the NIH "Public Access Policy").

2. Requests from third parties

Requests for all uses not included above, including the authorization of third parties to reproduce or otherwise use all or part of the article (including figures and tables), should be referred to the Elsevier Global Rights Department by going to our website at <http://www.elsevier.com/locate/permissions> and selecting 'Permissions'. See note 7 re posting in connection with the NIH "Public Access Policy".

3. Author warranties

- The article you have submitted to the journal for review is original, has been written by the stated authors and has not been published elsewhere.
- The article is not currently being considered for publication by any other journal and will not be submitted for such review while under review by the journal.
- The article contains no libellous or other unlawful statements and does not contain any materials that violate any personal or proprietary rights of any other person or entity.
- You have obtained written permission from copyright owners for any excerpts from copyrighted works that are included and have credited the sources in your article.
- If the article was prepared jointly with other authors, you have informed the co-author(s) of the terms of this copyright transfer and that you are signing on their behalf as their agent, and represent that you are authorized to do so.

4. US Government employees

- If all co-authors are US Government employees there is no copyright to transfer. Please sign the form, to confirm the author warranties.
- If there is a number of co-authors, of which at least one is a US Government employee (and this work was prepared in such capacity) and at least one is not a government employee, the non-government author should sign this form, indicating transfer of those rights which such author has (also on behalf of any other non-government co-authors).

5. Crown Copyright

- UK Government employee authors may elect to transfer copyright.
- UK Government employees wishing to claim Crown Copyright should mark the appropriate box overleaf, sign the form to affirm the author warranties and attach the completed authorization form as per HMSO guidelines at <http://www.hmso.gov.uk/copyright/guidance/articles/htm>.
- The work of Canadian or Australian Government employees is automatically subject to Crown Copyright. Please mark the appropriate box and sign the form to affirm the author warranties.
- If there is a number of co-authors, of which at least one is claiming Crown Copyright and at least one is not an employee of the UK, Canadian or Australian Government, the non-government author should sign this form, indicating transfer of those rights which such author has (also on behalf of any other non-government co-authors).

6. Elsevier's AiP (Articles in Press) service

Elsevier may choose to publish an abstract or portions of the paper before we publish it in the journal. Please contact our Production department immediately if you do not want us to make any such prior publication for any reason, including disclosure of a patentable invention.

7. US National Institutes of Health (NIH) voluntary posting/ "Public Access Policy"

Elsevier facilitates author posting in connection with the voluntary posting request of the NIH (referred to as the NIH "Public Access Policy", see <http://publicaccess.nih.gov/>) by submitting the peer-reviewed author's manuscript directly to PubMed Central on request from the author, immediately after final publication. Please email us at NIHauthorrequest@elsevier.com that your work has received NIH funding (with the NIH grant/project number(s), as well as name and e-mail address of the Principal Investigator(s)) and that you intend to respond to the NIH request. Upon such confirmation, Elsevier will submit to PubMed Central on your behalf a version of your manuscript that will include peer-review comments, for public access posting 12 months after the final publication date. This will ensure that you will have responded fully to the NIH request policy. There will be no need for you to post your manuscript directly to PubMed Central, and any such posting is prohibited (although Elsevier will not request that manuscripts authored and posted by US government employees should be taken down from PMC). Individual modifications to this general policy may apply to some Elsevier journals and its society publishing partners.
